2019 - 2020

MISSION STATEMENT

BDES serves the Kingdom of God in enabling the enablers to develop the growth in Faith, Knowledge and Understanding of God in schools.

INTRODUCTION

The Catholic Certificate in Religious Studies (CCRS) is managed and awarded by the Board of Religious Studies on behalf of the Bishops' Conference of England and Wales. It was introduced in 1991 to replace its predecessors, The Catholic Teachers' Certificate and the Certificate in Religious Education. Any person who is or wishes to be involved in Catholic education and formation may apply for this course. This includes those involved in Religious Education in school, Parish Catechesis and other ministries in the Church and anyone who wishes to follow the course for faith development or personal interest. The course seeks to ensure that participants have at least a basic knowledge and understanding of the beliefs of the Catholic Faith. It also provides a basis for further study.

The course is designed for teachers in Catholic schools; that they may have a basic understanding of the Church, its teaching and way of life to enable them to contribute to the maintenance of the ethos of the Catholic school. It is also for catechists in order to give them a basic understanding of the faith of the Catholic Church as a foundation for their catechetical ministry, and for adult members of the Church to enable them to continue to grow in understanding as they live their Catholic faith.

COURSE AIMS

Study for the Catholic Certificate in Religious Studies aims to:

- provide teachers and those involved in parish ministry with knowledge and understanding of the teaching and beliefs of the Catholic Faith
- develop an appreciation of the principles of Catholic education at all levels
- employ and encourage sound adult education processes which express Gospel values
- enhance understanding of education within the Church as a life-long process
- enable all participants to make an informed contribution to their chosen field of work in the Church
- highlight the role and function of Religious Education within the school curriculum.

"We are all the Church: from the recently baptised child to the bishops, to the Pope; we are all the Church, and we are all equal in the eyes of God. We are all called to be educators in faith to proclaim the Gospel." Pope Francis

ACHIEVING CERTIFICATION

The certificate is normally awarded after two years' study with a maximum of five years to complete from the start of the first module (only exceptional pastoral reasons are acceptable for studying beyond five years). Without a good reason for exemption the modules will cease to be valid. The five year period starts from when you first start your studies with the centre and not from when you are registered with the National CCRS Database. If you dispute the maximum five years' study with the centre they will need to have any extension of study agreed with the CCRS Regional group first. It is possible in the Diocese of Brentwood to complete the course within one school year as all 8 modules are offered annually, although it is recognised that to do so requires significant commitment on the part of the participant.

Certification is awarded following the study and completion of eight modules:

- Six core modules: Old Testament, New Testament, Christology, Sacraments, Christian Morality and The Church
[these modules are common to all centres offering the CCRS in England and Wales]
- Two specialist modules: Relationship and Sex Education and Religious Education
[these are the specialist modules currently offered in the diocese of Brentwood; different modules are offered by other centres across England and Wales]

The Catechism of the Catholic Church begins its definition of faith, with the human search for meaning, the Divine Revelation of God who comes to meet us, and the individual's response in faith (CCC # 26). This is the process that is adapted in all the modules explored with the participants.

"The New Testament has put an end to the invisibility of the Father. The Son of God, by His Incarnation, Death and Resurrection has freed us from the slavery of sin, giving us the freedom of sons and daughters of God: He has shown us the face of God, which is love. We can see God, He is visible in Christ."

Pope Benedict XVI (May 2011)

Core Module 3: CHRISTOLOGY

All Christ's riches 'are for every individual and everybody's property.'

Christ did not live his life for himself but for us, from his incarnation 'for us and for our salvation' to his death 'for our sins' and Resurrection 'for our justification'. He is still 'our advocate with the Father', who 'always lives to make intercession' for us. He remains ever 'in the presence of God on our behalf, bringing before him all that he lived and suffered for us'. (CCC#519)

Aim

The purpose of this module is to deepen participants' awareness of the significance and centrality of the person and work of Jesus Christ in the daily life of the Christian as well as in the worship of the Church.

Learning outcomes

Participants should:

- recognise the diversity of images of the Person of Jesus

The witness which the Church brings to the world is the love of Christ. Through Christ is revealed to us both the capacity of humanity to love deeply, and through his Spirit the grace to do so. Christ shows us what redeemed humanity can achieve.

Cardinal Basil Hume

"In Christ you can find the answers to the questions that accompany your journey, not in a superficial or facile way but walking and living with Jesus.

Do not be afraid to face difficult situations, moments of crisis or the trials of life, because the Lord accompanies you, He is with you. I encourage you to grow in friendship with Him through frequent reading of the Gospel and of all Sacred Scripture, faithful participation in the Eucharist as a personal meeting with Christ, committed efforts within the ecclesial community, and follow a good spiritual guide.

Allow the mystery of Christ to illuminate your entire being! Then will you be able to bring others to this novelty which can change relations, institutions and structures, and so build more just and united world animated by the search for the common good."

Benedict XVI - 2011

Core Module 4: THE CHURCH

The Church is Trinitarian love and life lived in a structured community by men and women who are sent to give the love and message of Jesus to others. This Trinitarian love is: received in Baptism, celebrated in the Eucharist, taught in Scripture and poured out on the world by the Holy Spirit.

Fr. Christopher O'Donnell, O. Carm.

Aim

The purpose of this module is to enable participants to reflect on the nature of the Church and its mission in the world today.

- be familiar with the Vatican II teaching on the Church
- be aware of the variety of roles in the Church of today
- recognise the relationship of the Church to the world as one of service
- appreciate the relationship between the Catholic church and other faiths

The Church is the 'house of harmony' where unity and diversity know how to come together to create richness. The Church is like a great orchestra we are not all the same, each person offers what God has given to him or her. The Church is a merciful mother, who understands, who always tries to help, to give encouragement even when her children have made mistakes or continue to do so. I see the Church as a field hospital after battle.

Pope Francis.

Assignment

PRACTICAL ASSIGNMENT

An account of this assignment should be sent electronically to ccrs@dioceseofbrentwood.org. Set up a meeting with your local priest. If possible, spend some time with him reflecting on and sharing his vision of "Church"; where he hopes to lead his parish community in terms of his "Model of Church"; what has influenced his views?

Possible questions to ask your priest:

1. What model of 'Church' guides and directs your vision for the parish?
2. What influences have shaped your vision?
3. How would you interpret 'Collaborative Ministry'?
4. What importance do you give to the schools which serve your young people?

Reading

A. Flannery, Vatican Council: Dogmatic Constitution on the Church (Lumen gentium) revised edition, 1996

G. Collins, 'I have seven dreams' (article published in Tablet 19.9.09 pp8-9)

The Holy Bible (CTS New Catholic Bible 2007 reflects text used in English lectionaries)

Catechism of the Catholic Church (available at www.vatican.va/archive)

The Church is the community of those who confess the Lordship of Jesus (that he is "the way, the truth and the life" - John 14:6) and who strive to live their lives in accordance with his example and teachings. The Church is also known as the People of God, the Body of Christ, and the Temple of the Holy Spirit among other names. Those three names, however, accentuate the Trinitarian context for an understanding of the Church, a context that is also employed by Vatican II's Dogmatic Constitution on the Church (nn.2-4). R McBrien.

The Church has her roots in the teachings of the Apostles, authentic witnesses to Christ, but looks to the future and has the fixed awareness of being sent by Christ, of being Christ's missionary, of bringing forth Christ's name by prayer, proclamation and witness. Pope Francis.

The Church is the house where the doors are always open not only to welcome everyone in to breathe love and hope so that we can take this love and hope outside. We need the oxygen of the Gospel, the breath of the Spirit of the Risen Christ to reignite hope in our hearts. Pope Francis

Core Module 5: SACRAMENTS

Sacraments are 'powers that comes forth' from the Body of Christ, which is ever living and life-giving. They are actions of the Holy Spirit at work in his Body, the Church. They are 'the masterworks of God' in the new and everlasting covenant. (CCC#1116)

Aim

The purpose of this module is to develop participants' understanding and appreciation of the Sacraments in the life of Catholics as a sign of Christ's continuing presence with the Church.

Learning outcomes

Participants should:

- recognise the symbolic use of word and action in daily life
- understand the relevance and purpose of the seven sacraments in the life of the individual and the Christian community
- appreciate Baptism, Confirmation and Eucharist as sacraments of Christian initiation
- appreciate the sacraments as celebrations of the covenant relationship between Christ and the Church
- be able to communicate what they have learned from an adult stance.

God never wearies of forgiving us, never! The Lord forgives and forgets. Pope Francis.

P. Breen, The Sacraments of the Catholic Church (available at www.carmelites.ie/sacraments)

Catechism of the Catholic Church (available at www.vatican.va/archive)

Our Parishes are centred upon the celebration of the Sacraments and especially the celebration of the Mass. Catholics are rightly orientated toward the centrality of the Eucharist. The Eucharist builds up the Body of Christ but all the Sacraments are essentially communal and are best celebrated in a community. The Sacraments of Anointing, Reconciliation, Baptism, Confirmation are best celebrated in a whole parish setting. The Sacraments of Ordination and Marriage are to be celebrated in such a way as to underline that they too belong to the whole community.

The Church gives us life in Baptism: that is, the moment in which she enables us to be born as children of God in which she generates us as a mother. She nourishes us in the Eucharist, she brings us God's forgiveness through the Sacrament of Penance, she supports us in times of sickness through the Anointing of the Sick. Pope Francis

Core Module 6: CHRISTIAN MORALITY

St Thomas Aquinas wrote, 'There is nothing to prevent human nature's being raised up to something greater, even after sin; God permits evil in order to draw forth some greater good. Thus St Paul says' "Where sin increased, grace abounded all the more"; and the Exsultet sings " Oh happy fault... which gained for us so great a redeemer!" (CCC#412)

Aim

The purpose of this module is to help participants develop the skills of moral decision-making, to examine Christian teaching in its relation to the universal search for what constitutes "human good", and to explore the application of Christian understanding to some contemporary moral issues.

Learning outcomes

Participants should:

- have a knowledge of the foundations of Christian morality and an understanding of the role of the Church as moral teacher
- recognise the importance of individual conscience and understand what is involved in the formation of Christian conscience
- be able to appreciate and respect different, yet conscientiously held, positions in regard to moral questions
- be able to communicate what they have learned from an adult stance.

Our Lord Jesus himself clearly taught us the first principles of Catholic morality:

"You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind. This is the great and first commandment. And a second is like it, you shall love your neighbour as yourself. On these two commandments depend all the law and the prophets." (Mt 22:37-40)

Specialist Module 1: RELATIONSHIP AND SEX EDUCATION

"Everyone, man and woman, should acknowledge and accept his sexual identity. Physical, moral, and spiritual difference and complementarity are oriented toward the goods of marriage and the flourishing of family life. The harmony of the couple and of society depends in part on the way in which the complementarity, needs, and mutual support between the sexes are lived out."

Schools have a key role in the mission of the Church; they exist, as the whole Church does, to communicate Christ to others. Our schools are integral to the life of the Church and are not an 'add on'. Schools must see themselves as a part of the Church community working in partnership with the parishes. Teaching is a ministry within the Church and the vocation of teachers and all those who work in schools, needs to be highly valued.

GUIDELINES FOR WRITING CCRS ESSAYS

Essay writing is an art in itself and ‘essays’ were a proper field for professional writers and men of letters; collections of essays, still, often bring together different authors on a particular theme. Essays were – and are – sociological, some medical, literary, political, etc. The art of the essay reached a dizzy peak in the mid-18th to mid-19th century. One of the most (in)famous of these literary essays was Thomas de Quincey’s On Murder Considered as one of the Fine Arts, published in 1827.

Obviously we are talking about something rather different here! Essays such as those written for CCRS assignments are short (but not brief), to-the-point and intended to show your knowledge and understanding of a particular subject. This being the case, they need to be concise – concentrated, if you like. Even so, there are guidelines which it is fairly important to follow as best you can; they make it easier on the writer and the reader. Some of them are simply common-sense, while one or two others are a little more specific.

These guidelines are offered according to the general requirements of the Board of Religious Studies of the Bishops’ Conference of England and Wales. Hopefully, they will prove helpful.

PRESENTATION

Obviously, the essay must be easy to read; it is very important therefore to use double spacing and a reasonably large font size – depending on which font you use. Essays printed in a font so large that it looks as though it was written for the extremely short-sighted is just as uncomfortable to read as a tiny font that needs a magnifying glass to be seen.

If the requirement for the essay is 1,500 words, that’s what it should be. We would usually allow a maximum tolerance of 10% either way; that is, between 1,350 and 1,650 words. Always include a word count. The computer will do this for you, of course – otherwise the reader has to count it.

Always, too, include a bibliography. This needn’t be the size of the British Museum Library – but one book simply isn’t enough. Obviously, teachers are very busy people and don’t have the luxury of sitting down to read an armful of books, but the CCRS essays are important enough to give a little extra reading time to. Online sites are also okay, but cutting and pasting whole chunks of text isn’t; these cut-and-paste passages usually contain tell-tale reference numbers that make it obvious they aren’t your own work.

It would be great if books outnumbered URLs, but let common sense prevail: a couple of books in the bibliography – including the recommended reading – would be good.

It is important to reference all quotations; if you put something in inverted commas or quotation marks, a reference should always be given, saying where the quotation comes from. These can be in the form of footnotes or endnotes.

A correct form of bibliographical listing is – just for example – this:

Bradley, Ritamary. (1992). Julian’s Way. London: Harper Collins.

That is: surname, name, date, title, place of publication and publisher.

What you say should be relevant to the assignment subject; this may seem pretty obvious, but sometimes there is a temptation to wander!

Also, in an essay that is relatively speaking fairly brief, there simply isn’t time to stray into unrelated areas, however fascinating they might be. The essay should be clearly structured, properly paragraphed and balanced in content. For example, a paper comparing St Mark’s gospel with St Matthew’s, shouldn’t have four pages on St Mark, one on St Matthew, and none comparing the two.

The issue of plagiarism is an area to which the Board of Religious Studies draws attention. Please find your own voice in responding to the assignments, and please do not use uncredited the work of others. This covers but is not limited to submissions wholly or partly abstracted from an online source or book, a previously submitted assignment, or a submission relying on overuse of paraphrase. Should there be concern that an assignment submitted is substantially not one's own work, the candidate will be asked to re-submit and there may be a delay in passing the course.

Language should be inclusive. So, really, to write about Jesus 'dying to save all men' isn't terribly appropriate. And it should not be 'exhortatory' – in other words, it shouldn't sound like a sermon. 'We should' and 'we must' and 'we ought' don't have a place in what is essentially an academic piece – even though they do have a place in this paragraph. This – for example – would not be good:

'St John's gospel tells us that Jesus commended his mother to the beloved disciple, and the disciple to his mother; therefore we should look to Mary, his mother, as our own mother, and pray to her...'

Although language is a living thing, some linguistic developments seem less than organic than others. For example, the gospels do not 'reference' the life of Christ, they describe or relate it. Indeed, what they do is proclaim it. Also, when one is writing of Catholic teaching, it is probably best simply to say: 'The Church teaches that...' rather than 'the Church asserts' or 'the Church thinks that', and so on. This is the kind of sentence that would not be appealing to the reader:

'The Catholic Church asserts there are seven sacraments, each one referencing a stage in life.'

Also, it is best to check that what you are suggesting the Church teaches, the Church actually does. In the past there has occasionally been a certain – well, inventiveness – in the module on Morality.

And on the subject of Church, it always has a capital 'C' unless one is referring to a particular church, parish or building – then it has a small 'c'.

Points made from personal experience are always welcome – for one thing, they make the essay's voice more authentic. This is particularly important when you are writing about school and parish community. Only one caveat: personal experience has its limits; if you're writing about the Synoptic gospels, don't fill the essay with classroom stories. Balance is always the ideal – in presentation, organization and content.

These are only concluding observations based on solid experience of reading and marking CCRS essays. It's a lot less complicated than it sounds: just write a clear, structured essay showing that i) you've done at least some background reading or research; ii) you have understood the contents of the module and can express that understanding in good, plain English. No more than that.

Everyone knows that teaching time and family time are precious; the Diocese is more than glad that teachers and interested persons like yourself come forward and generously give of both kinds of time so that they may advance in knowledge and understanding of the Faith. After all, you have in your care the Church of the future.

Submission of essays should be electronic – the course is committed to digital literacy - and must always be submitted to the email address ccrs@dioceseofbrentwood.org . The subject of your email must contain 'CCRS essay', your name and module title (not just module number). For example: 'CCRS, John / Jane Doe, Old Testament.' Failure to include this information in the title may result in a delay in the essay being marked.

Terms and conditions and additional information

Registration is with Brentwood Diocesan Education Service (BDES) as an approved centre by The National Board of Religious Studies to affirm the successful learning of the student on the Catholic Certificate for Religious Studies course; this will commence the month the student attends or is expected to attend their first module.

It is the preference of BDES that students complete the course within one year of starting the course, although all students, have a maximum of five years from registration date with the centre to complete the course (referred to as five-year timeframe).

Successful completion of the course is dependent on all compulsory sessions being attended and all module assignments being satisfactorily completed within that five-year timeframe. It is the student's responsibility to sign all attendance sheets/registers for the lectures and tutorials. Failure to do so will be noted in the student's records as 'did not attend'; should the situation arise in which a query occurs over attendance and in which the student avers they have attended the session but did not sign the registration form, the student will not be deemed to have attended and will be required to repeat the session within the five-year timeframe. Under no circumstances may any student sign the registration form / attendance list for any other person.

Assignments are expected to be submitted as soon as possible after the attendance of each module. Students must adhere to the writing guidelines provided when commencing the course. Failure to do so may result in re-submission being required. Assignments should only be submitted following attendance of the sessions and should not be submitted in advance; the integrity of the process of the assignments being a response to guided learning is a feature of the course. In the event of an assignment not being satisfactorily completed, the student will be advised and a re-submission requested.

Students are asked to notify the centre and (if appropriate) the tutor should they be unable to attend any session.

A module certificate will only be considered passed by the centre upon satisfactory completion of each of the module's elements (attendance of compulsory sessions and satisfactory completion of the module assignment).

Failure to attend any compulsory session, or failure to complete a satisfactory assignment for any aspect of the course within the five-year timeframe will result in the student not completing the course and, should they still wish to qualify for the Certificate, having to repeat the entire course.

It is not possible to carry over previous attendance in lectures, tutorials or satisfactory completion of essays on to a new course should the course not be completed within the five-year timeframe. In this instance, students would need to reapply, begin the course and pay all fees again.

All fees must be paid to complete the course. If an individual is paying on a modular basis, all fees must be paid before the certificate is awarded, even if the course is fully completed. Payment must be made within the five-year timeframe to ensure that the certificate is received or discussions need to have taken place with the centre within the five-year timeframe regarding any issues relating to fees.

It is the student's responsibility to keep the centre updated with any change in personal contact information, in particular, home address, contact number, email address, school address (if applicable). Failure to do so may result in not receiving communications relating to the course, for which the centre cannot be held responsible.

Finally, in the event of any difficulties or issues please let us know and we will do our utmost to help within the conditions laid down. You can contact BDES on 01277 265285 or John Adams the CCRS Coordinator on 07825 418473 (work mobile), mail us at ccrs@dioceseofbrentwood.org or reach us by post at Brentwood Diocesan Education Service, Cathedral House, Ingrave Road, Brentwood CM15 8AT.
