

If one part is hurt, all the parts share its pain. And if one part is honoured, all the parts share its joy. St Paul.

No teacher is ever alone, his or her work is shared with other colleagues and with all the education community to which they belong. Pope Francis

Catholic ethos was a strand throughout, with quotations from Pope Francis and the Bible, time to reflect on personal faith and a prayer at the end

I loved the phrase 'The life of the school can be re-ignited and celebrated.' As a school community, it's what we're all about

It wasn't really until working through this resource that it hit me what we've been through in the last 12 months.

The Power-Point pulled at my heart strings and made me quite emotional

It has helped me realise the impact of my role and how I can help and support the children in my class.

This resource has helped me reflect on what the last year has actually been like for students and staff, but most importantly what to do to support students and staff as we overcome and get out of the pandemic

I found the resource very interesting given our experiences teaching students in such challenging times over the last year. I had perhaps not really considered the term 'attachment theory' previously but the issues described and explained made this clearer

It put some mental health issues which surfaced during lockdown into the context of attachment theory.

I liked very much the analogy of the Redwood tree linking to the strength of our school community as we support each other

It is very in tune with the current situation
